

New era for HH in the capital while building on success closer to home

It was at the beginning of 2019 that HH launched its London venture. This was undertaken in the first instance by an inaugural dinner held in the Palace of Westminster at which some key contacts and clients were invited.

Since the launch earlier this year, HH has continued to build on expanding its footprint within London. This has also been demonstrated by its recent event which was held in the Engine Room at Tower Bridge at which over 60 key contacts attended including some famous names such as Bobby Zamora and Mark Noble as well as the “tax timelord” Peter Rayney (Deputy President of the Chartered Institute of Taxation).

HH has concentrated on developing its relationships with its London contacts by using the same tried and tested formula of good client service and transparent fees all of which is framed around commercial advice.

HH has not taken its focus away from its Midlands roots and has continued to also expand its professional contacts and client base within the Midlands.

All of this has meant that HH has been involved in a number of key transactions which have earned their place as being some of the major or prestigious transactions of that kind in that sector within the Midlands region.

The three main areas HH continues to focus on are; M&A, Real Estate and Dispute Resolution. HH works well with other firms in respect of employment and private client work.

HH has gained recognition for its areas of specialisms from clients, professional contacts, including accountants and financial institutions. HH is going to commemorate its 15-year anniversary next year. It has been a long journey in a short time and it has been a long ladder to climb.

Colin Rodrigues, Corporate Partner, said: “You have to keep moving forward as time does not stand still and in these ever-changing times, you are only as good as your last deal.”

“In recent years, we have seen many people in firms come and go. As long as you stay true to your principles you are always able to move forward and innovate which is the key to being an effective law firm.”

Harminder Sandhu, Dispute Resolution, said: “In 15 years, I have seen so many changes, but change is always good as it keeps everybody on their toes. I still have a passion for law and as long as this continues, I will always strive to ensure that HH continues to achieve the goals and recognition that it deserves.”
